

Author Acceptance Requirements and Consequences

Authors with accepted abstracts must complete all author acceptance attestations before their presentations are finalized in the conference program. These attestations confirm disclosure, professionalism, acceptance of the assigned format, and compliance with conference requirements.

Requirement	Author Responsibility	Consequence
Conflict of Interest Disclosure	Disclose all relevant financial, commercial, personal, or professional relationships that could reasonably be perceived to influence the work. Disclose any COI on the poster or designated platform slide.	Failure to disclose, or inaccurate disclosure, will be directed to the AAOMPT Ethics Committee and Board of Directors for review. The review outcome may affect the author's ability to present or participate in present or future conference programming.
Code of Conduct and Submission Expectations	Acknowledge that Research Committee decisions are final and communicate with the committee and its members in a respectful and professional manner.	Disrespectful, harassing, threatening, or unprofessional conduct toward the Research Committee or its members will be directed to the AAOMPT Ethics Committee and Board of Directors for review. The review outcome may affect the author's ability to present or participate in present or future conference programming.
Presentation Assignment and Conference Requirements	Confirm intent to present in the assigned poster or platform format and follow all applicable conference logistics, deadlines, and presentation requirements.	Failure to present in the accepted format, follow assigned requirements, meet deadlines, or comply with conference procedures may result in removal from present or future conference programming.
Platform Presentation Requirements	Platform presenters must use AV provided computers, submit final slides one week before the conference, make no edits after submission, follow the 5 minute presentation limit, and comply with timekeeping procedures.	Failure to submit final slides, use AV provided computers, comply with the no edits requirement, or follow platform procedures may result in removal from present or future conference programming. The microphone will be cut at 6:00 to preserve the conference schedule.
